Reporting Concerns: Your Responsibilities

The Ethics & Compliance Office maintains open lines of communication with associates and workforce members, and offers a number of reporting mechanisms. It is less important how you report concerns, so long as you report them. Concerns may be reported:

- To your Supervisor, if you are comfortable doing so;
- Directly to the Ethics & Compliance Office: (614) 544-4200;
- To the OhioHealth Ethics & Compliance Hotline: (866) 411-6181; or
- Using the online reporting tool: MyComplianceReport.com (Access ID: OHH).

Jessica Quinn, the Senior Vice President and Chief Ethics & Compliance Officer, upholds OhioHealth's Non-Retaliation Policy. Along with Human Resources, she protects OhioHealth workforce members from retaliation if they in good faith report suspected wrongdoing; participate in or with a compliance investigation pertaining to alleged wrongdoing; or assist appropriate authorities in investigating potential wrongdoing.
